

KEY ISSUES OF TEACHING ENGLISH AT SCHOOL

Authors – Zhumabai Zh., Khussainova G.Zh.

M. Auezov South Kazakhstan University

Learning a language is far from a simple thing, since learning a foreign language means learning everything about the country of this language. Learn about art, sights, cities, tradition, music - in short, absolutely everything.

English is one of the most widely spoken languages that dominates science and literature. According to the legislation of the Republic of Kazakhstan, the third authoritative language in the country is English in international relations. President of the Republic of Kazakhstan Nursultan Nazarbayev, at a meeting with a group of media leaders on May 29, 2008, confirmed his views on the English language in connection with the issue of "Trinity of languages".

In today's globalized world, multilingualism has a special place in society. We all know that learning another language, mastering it plays a special role in international relations. Language develops and coexists with people.

"We are accelerating the development of trilingualism." This is a necessity, not an imaginary world. Already 20% of Kazakhstanis speak English. That is, mastering three languages is a guide to the global world. This is the principle of success in human life. Thus, they will be able to work and earn a living anywhere in the world.

In this regard, every teacher striving to give a good education should develop and develop students' interest in the English language, supporting the idea. It is necessary to pay more attention not only to the knowledge of the English language, but also to its history and national culture. The goal of English language training is to learn to speak a foreign language, communicate and strive to find common ground and strengthen relationships, while the goal of training is to form the ability to express and defend one's opinion based on the culture of listening to others. people.

The school of the 21st century requires radical changes. The student should be able to quickly adapt to changes in the world and prove himself as a person with deep knowledge, well-developed, creative and able to read independently. In this regard, in accordance with modern requirements, the student must be proficient not only in one language, but also in several languages. This is why we all know that English is a very important subject for students today. Therefore, one of the most pressing problems is teaching foreign languages, including English, at an early age, since the political, economic, social and cultural ties of the Republic of Kazakhstan with foreign countries are developing day by day.

To achieve the goal of language learning, the teacher needs to motivate the student to overcome language learning difficulties.

It is carried out in 3 stages:

1. Development of speaking skills
2. Implementation of speaking skills
3. Realization of personal skills

At the first stage, if the students do not know which text to read or listen to, and the teacher chooses new words from this text. If at the end of the lesson the student understands what the teacher is saying, writes it down and applies it, this means that the first stage has been passed.

Dialogue also contributes to the development of the students' spoken language. Dialogue is the most basic form of communication. A relationship starts with a greeting. The teacher enters into dialogue with the students from the very beginning of the lesson. Conversations are created by giving students assignments on a specific topic.

The next stage is the development of lexical skills. Verbal memorization is now the development of visual memory. This is a search for a word out of context, the creation of new word combinations. Lexical skills are formed with a large number of phrases. In the end, the ability to compose a word in separate sentences, use it in different situations, express yourself.

Any kind of communicative speech activity is built at the level of lexical and grammatical training. Oral responsibility and work with text are the main tools in organizing active speech. In addition, students can actively communicate using information materials (computers, audiovisual). In teaching the English language, first of all, a practical goal is pursued - to enrich the vocabulary of students, teach them to write, communicate, talk about what they have seen and heard.

It is necessary to teach students to speak English, communicate, work independently, seek knowledge. This is a modern requirement. So that the lesson is not monotonous, it is important to divide the group into groups that discuss the problem, express their thoughts and establish a dialogue on the problem. Group work improves the effectiveness and quality of lessons, as well as develops learning activities and creative thinking of students.

It is also important to use an electronic textbook in English lessons. The effective use and application of information and communication technologies in the educational process provides a significant positive experience. In particular, the independent search for students is very important for increasing interest in the subject, developing creative abilities, forming a culture of educational activity, organizing independent work.

English is the language you need wherever you go. English as an international language is a language that represents the world, brings two countries closer together and forges closer relationships. Since Kazakhstan is a developing country that is recognized in the world today, it is very beneficial to interact with developed countries. There is no doubt that in order to be competitive in the global information space, it is necessary to use English. Thanks to this, we will get acquainted with the latest scientific discoveries, master new technologies, develop exports and imports, enter the world market, develop the country's tourism industry and bring many benefits to the country. We can enter the top 20 most developed countries both economically and economically. Knowledge of English is a global need. This is the main requirement of not only Kazakhstani but also global competition. Undoubtedly, this is the main weapon in relations with other countries. Because there are very few countries that do not speak the language of world communication. Therefore, the main goal for us, the next generation, is to gain deep knowledge, get acquainted with world languages and introduce the world to the Kazakh language, so that the window of the Kazakh nation is equal.

References: